

Sylvia St. James, vocalist and the Sacred Nation Gospel Choir

Armed with an anointed, powerful and passionate voice, wise and watchful eyes, hardworking hands and a warm and prayerful heart Sylvia St. James, known as “Miss Sylvia”, currently exhibits her soul stirring vocal abilities, boundless creativity, tireless talent and production skills via the fine arts of faith and praise every Sunday morning and afternoon at the award winning World Famous House Of Blues Sunday Gospel Brunch. She has brought her inimitable music to literally millions of people through her work with stars including Barbara Streisand, Garth Brooks, MC Hammer, Ce Ce Winans and more. Her work has been featured on the VHI Gospel Special, Madd TV, That’s So Raven, An American Tragedy, State Of Grace and other television programs and profiled on ABC, CBS, NBC, CNN and UPN new programs. Her feature film work includes singing on the soundtracks to The Air Up There, Where The Boys Area and Made In America. Sylvia currently serves as National Director of Gospel Talent, Lead Vocalist and Chief Mistress of Ceremonies for House of Blues Entertainment and her privately owned companies, St. James Gospel Music Services and St. James Entertainment.

Sylvia’s primary focus is gospel-music ministry, singing, acting, producing, and performing. She has been privileged to coordinate choirs and ensembles, and to present and perform gospel music services for many. The Sacred Nation Gospel Choir, a hand-picked group of powerful gospel singers, is typical of her extraordinary roster of gospel talent.
